Eastvale Accelerates Innovation with the Addition of a Rivian Service Center

EASTVALE, CALIF. – The City of Eastvale is pleased to announce the addition of a Rivian Service Center in the 77,000-square-foot industrial facility in The Ranch Specific Plan at the corner of Limonite Avenue and the Cucamonga Creek Channel.

Founded in 2009, the American electric vehicle maker produces the all-electric Rivian R1T pickup and R1S SUV as well as a custom electric delivery van for Amazon at its manufacturing plant in Normal, IL. At over 40 locations strong, Rivian’s network of service centers aim to provide seamless vehicle service and ownership support. Apart from vehicle service, the service center will also serve as a location for new owners to take delivery of their R1.

“We are thrilled that Rivian has decided to open a service center in the city of Eastvale,” said Mayor Christian Dinco. “Their focus on innovation and beautiful design makes them the perfect fit for our city.”

The service center will employ a few dozen local employees in the areas of vehicle operations, vehicle service, and delivery and mobile operations as the company looks to expand its footprint in one of its largest markets.

City Manager Mark Orme also noted how overjoyed the City is to welcome a company as innovative as Rivian. “The city is witnessing a high level of interest from companies that wish to be a part of a city recently ranked 7th in the nation by Fortune for best places to live for families.”

As Rivian's Eastvale Service Center ramps up deliveries of its category-defining electric adventure vehicles, the City eagerly anticipates the positive impact the new vehicle service facility will have on the local economy, job market, and the overall vibrancy of the community.
